Save the Date: Joint Critical Infrastructure Partnership Symposium

Mark Your Calendars!

JCIP symposiums will include discussions on:

- DHS and FBI programs, tools and resources
- Fusion centers
- Cross-sector dependencies and interdependencies
- Cybersecurity
- Active shooter response
- And more

The events also will feature Audience Participation Technology, allowing real-time, visually displayed feedback from event participants on a range of questions during the course of the day.

The Joint Critical Infrastructure Partnership (JCIP) Symposium is coming to your region. The Department of Homeland Security's Office of Infrastructure Protection, in partnership with the FBI and InfraGard, is hosting five regionally based events across the Nation focused on matters of critical infrastructure protection and resilience. Each symposium will draw from the expertise of key players in the critical infrastructure protection arena to inform and encourage open dialogue among participants from DHS and FBI; State and local government; regional consortiums; and the private sector.

Who Should Attend?

Critical infrastructure owners and operators, CIOs, security directors, risk managers, business continuity directors, IT directors, State homeland security and emergency management staff.
